Name:

Class:

Date:

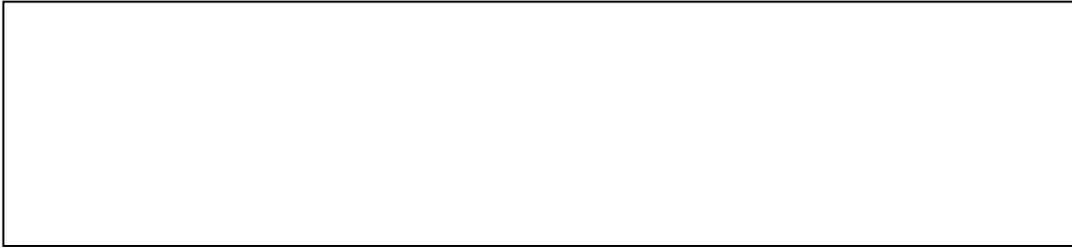

1. You have received an email from what appears to be 'MySpace' asking you to visit a specified website to update your password immediately.

2. You have found a blog website which has posts from people with comments about you.

3. The new iPhone is a gadget you MUST have but you cannot afford it. You come across an auction site which is selling the phone for £50 but requires you to enter your bank account details.

4. You enter a chat room online and start receiving abuse from other people in the room.

5. When checking your email you find you have a new message from someone you do not know. The message asks you to open the attachment to speed up your PC.

6. You have just got a new phone for your birthday and it has a mp3 player built in. You want to put music on it, but you cannot afford to buy albums. Your friend tells you about a piece of software that allows you to download music for free.
